During October 2017, the SANDF Army Reserves once again participated in the 25th annual Netherlands International Shooting Competition for Reserves (NISC). The competition was hosted by the Reservists Shooting Committee (Reservisten Schiet Commissie - RSC) of the Netherlands Armed Forces Federation of Reserves (Nederlandse Reservisten Federatie Krijgsmacht - NRFK). The event was held at the Harskamp Army infantry shooting ranges (Infanterie Schietkamp Harskamp) from 6 to 8 October.

NISC this year attracted over 150 participants from around the world, with countries contributing shooters that compete in teams of three. South Africa joined participants hailing from Albania, Belgium, Estonia, France, Germany, Ireland, Italy, Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Spain, Switzerland and the United Kingdom. Teams enter three separate categories with different weapons. These are the pistol class, using the 9x19mm Parabellum chambered Glock-17 and Walther P99, and rifle classes with the 5.56mm chambered (M-16 based) Diemaco/Colt Canada C7 and (M-4 based) Diemaco/Colt Canada C8.

As with previous years, the South African team attending the NISC event was drawn from the top performing shooters who competed at the Chief of the SA Army Combat Shooting Competition, held in Bloemfontein from 20 to 22 April 2017. The three top-scoring shooters from each of the open, development and ladies' categories were selected out of approximately four hundred participants.

The Reserve Force Council and SA Army collaborate in sending Reserve Force shooters to the annual NISC event, with the RFC making annual budgetary provision for the cost of airfares, overseas allowances, entry fees, accommodation and meals. The SA Army makes wages, training equipment and ammunition available to members preparing in South Africa for the overseas competition.

While some of South Africa's participants had been to NISC events in the past, it was also a time of discovery for others, for whom it was their first long haul international flight and travel abroad. Those selected were -

On the range wearing equipment issued by the hosts for the competition.

While the event has marksmanship and skill at arms as the order of the day, there was plenty of time for competitors to socialise with their fellows while transiting between the respective ranges. This camaraderie would culminate in the gala evening hosted on Saturday 7 October by the organisers to give credit to participants, range officers and facilitating staff. The Gala's dinner and prize giving provided a platform upon which just reward could be placed upon the best that reserve forces from Europe and around the world had to put forward. SA Army Reserve Team A came first in the Rifle Team Category: Diemaco/Colt Canada C8, while MWO P.M. Dias Lobo placed in the top five in the Individual Rifle Category: Diemaco/Colt Canada: C8.

Participants were afforded the opportunity to socialise at the Gala event.

Team members were afforded the opportunity to visit the Netherlands' National Military Museum situated at Amersfoort on the former air base at Soesterberg. The museum's holdings and displays are constituted from the combined collections of the former Military Aviation Museum in Soesterberg and the Army Museum in Delft. Members were able to visit and appreciate the numerous armoured vehicles, rotary and fixed wing aircraft, weapons and military equipment.

As had been the case in previous years, the team paid a visit to South Africa's diplomatic mission to the Netherlands in Amsterdam to have lunch with the Republic's Ambassador, His Excellency, Mr Bruce Koloane. Members were most conscious of the notion that they are representatives of South Africa during their time abroad just as their diplomatic counterparts are. The visit marked the conclusion of the team's time in the Netherlands before their return to South Africa. The experiences and insights gained on the journey will without a doubt be of great value to both the old hands and the newcomers.

The team expresses its sincere thanks for the support rendered by the Reserve Force Council and the SA Army so as to make attendance at the 2017 NISC possible.
